

The 'Doomsday' Village and the Eternal Doom

Kumar Nadesan

The idyllic 'Doomsday' village sits on the Peak of Bugarach, the highest point of the Corbieres massif, in south-western France. The Peak of Bugarach is also called the upside down mountain because its top layers are older than the ones at the bottom owing to the uplift of the Pyrenees. This village is surrounded with centuries of legend that its mountain contains doors into other worlds, or that extraterrestrials will return here on Judgment day on 12 December 2012 to take refuge at their base. The Doomsday proponents believe that it is the only place that will survive Judgment day. And for this very reason, this French hamlet has become a focal point for many doomsday believers and thousands are expected to throng here on 12 December 2012, the Dooms Day...

It is nothing but a fairy tale. The Word of God, on the other hand, has altogether a different story to tell. It says that it is appointed unto men once to die and after this the judgment. Death is a certainty and that will visit every man and woman upon the earth sooner or later, whoever he or she may be.

And judgment follows death. In that judgment all who rejected the mediatory work of the Lord Jesus Christ will be thrown into the hell fire, where their souls will suffer eternal torments. The Lord Jesus Christ came into the world for the very purpose of delivering man from the jaws of eternal death. For God sent not His Son into the world to condemn the world; but the world through Him might be saved. This is the grand design of God. To accomplish the redemptive work of man, the Son of God had to die on the cross.

At the dawn of history sin entered the world through the disobedience of one man, Adam. But the free gift of eternal life came by One Man, the Lord Jesus Christ. For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but shall have everlasting life. By trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ, you can escape from the coming doom!

Dear reader, have you put your trust in the Lord Jesus Christ? If not so, believe in Him, confess your sins to Him and receive eternal life right now and escape from the coming eternal doom!
